adaptive optics allows the theoretical limit of angular resolution to be achieved from a large telescope despite the presence of turbulence

thus an eight meter class telescope such as one of the four in the very large telescope operated by eso in chile will in future be routinely capable of an angular resolution of almost 0 01 arcsec compared to the present resolution of about 0 5 arcsec for conventional imaging in good condition all the world's major telescopes either have adaptive optics or are in the process of building ao systems it turns out that a reasonable fraction of the sky can be observed using adaptive optics with moderately good imaging quality provided imaging is done in the near ir to move out of the near ir with its relatively poor angular resolution astronomers need a laser guide star there is a layer of na atoms at approximately 90 km altitude that can be excited by a laser to produce such a source or rayleigh scattering can be employed lower in the atmosphere but the production and use of laser guide stars is not trivial and the key issues determining their successful implementation are discussed here including the physics of the na atom the cone effect tilt determination sky coverage and numerous potential astronomical applications the amount of algebraic topology a graduate student specializing in topology must learn can be intimidating moreover by their second year of graduate studies students must make the transition from understanding simple proofs line by line to understanding the overall structure of proofs of difficult theorems to help students make this transition the material in this book is presented in an increasingly sophisticated manner it is intended to bridge the gap between algebraic and geometric topology both by providing the algebraic tools that a geometric topologist needs and by concentrating on those areas of algebraic topology that are geometrically motivated prerequisites for using this book include basic set theoretic topology the definition of CW complexes some knowledge of the fundamental group covering space theory and the construction of singular homology most of this material is briefly reviewed at the beginning of the book the topics discussed by the authors include typical material for first and second year graduate courses the core of the exposition consists of chapters on homotopy groups and on spectral sequences there is also material that would interest students of geometric topology homology with local coefficients and obstruction theory and algebraic topology spectra and generalized homology as well as preparation for more advanced topics such as algebraic K theory and the S-cobordism theorem a unique feature of the book is the inclusion at the end of each chapter of several projects that require students to present proofs of substantial theorems and to write notes accompanying their explanations working on these projects allows students to grapple with the big picture teaches them how to give mathematical lectures and prepares them for participating in research seminars the book is designed as a textbook for graduate students studying algebraic and geometric topology and homotopy theory it will also be useful for students from other fields such as differential geometry algebraic geometry and homological algebra the exposition in the text is clear special cases are presented over complex general statements
