nursing documentation is not an aim in itself it is a vital source of information for nursing staff and essential for the patient s safety and the quality of nursing care however there are indications that the quality of nursing documentation is often sub optimal how this quality can be improved was not clear this thesis aims to give a better understanding of the quality criteria and the views of nurses and patients on electronic nursing documentation a systematic review of systematic reviews focussed on what quality criteria nursing documentation should meet four of the eleven reviews indicate that alignment of the documentation with the phases of the nursing process is a criterion for high quality documentation furthermore seven reviews report that the use of standardized terminologies improves the quality of nursing documentation in addition three reviews show that electronic documentation is preferred and that the user friendliness of electronic health records is an important quality criterion a nationwide survey showed that nursing staff only feel moderately supported in their documentation by the use of electronic health records only half of these nursing staff used a standardized terminology the extent to which nursing staff felt supported in their documentation was not associated with the use of a standardized terminology nursing staff were less positive about whether the information in the electronic health records was accurate and whether the electronic health records were user friendly a mixed methods study showed that community nurses estimated that they spent twice as much time on clinical documentation of the care for patients as on organizational documentation concerning financial aspects the time spent on organizational documentation was related to nurses perceived workload while the time spent on clinical documentation was not organizational documentation in particular resulted in a high workload among nurses you can be an excellent nurse in the clinical setting and still fail to prove that you are an excellent nurse if your documentation is inadequate having worked in a variety of inpatient and outpatient settings i understand the obstacles nurses face there s just not time nor do nurses have the mental energy to meticulously document every little thing on top of the rest of their to do list that s part of why i became passionate about documentation education it doesn t have to be an overwhelming endless challenge to chart exhaustively in hopes that you enter enough data into the chart to defend yourself one day rather leveraging the most critical data knowing how to format notes and exactly what to say and when to spend five minutes dumping information into the chart can be learned skills that make documentation faster easier and less stressful while doing a better job of defending your actions the importance of documentation overcoming obstacles purpose s of documentation defensive charting obstacles impacting quality of medical record overcoming obstacles legal responsibilities of the nurse duties of the nurse nurse practice acts duties of the hospital hospital policy vs state board of nursing regulations reasonable prudence failure to fulfill document responsibilities fulfilling responsibilities vs documenting responsibilities what if responsibilities aren't fulfilled mistakes happen professional liability insurance malpractice medical negligence acting with malice fraud what happens when a nurse is charged with malpractice what to do if you receive notification of a claim common charting mistakes how to avoid them the most common errors charting by exception charting to capture minimal data but I've always charted this way and nothing bad has happened yet what you should be charting how and what to chart quick glance charting checklists what is a timely manner documenting assessments sample focused assessment criteria sharing the responsibility modifying electronic data abbreviations standing orders early warning systems scores scales informed consent special circumstances paper charting writing an incident report patient leaving AMA patient threatening to sue you identifying patient belongings another member of the team is not documenting correctly restraints defective equipment suspected abuse patient requesting to view their EMR on hospital computer narrative notes when how to write notes one note or several notes daily narrative notes examples of common notes written as needed how to title narrative notes how to format notes using patient names in notes length of notes create a template tips for less stress when charting bonus how I chart on a typical shift about the author I'm Andrea RN MSN perfecting my own documentation and working to find concrete guidelines to share with my fellow nurses has become my passion as I gained more knowledge and researched the dusty forgotten corners of the internet for obscure evidence based practice and case studies becoming a subject matter expert on nursing documentation lit a spark because sharing this information helps empower nurses to understand exactly what should appear in their patient charts where when it should be entered and how it should be phrased
