issues of same sex relationships and gay and lesbian rights are the subject of public and political controversy in many african societies today frequently these controversies receive widespread attention both locally and globally such as with the anti homosexuality bill in uganda in the international media these cases tend to be presented as revealing a deeply rooted homophobia in africa fuelled by religious and cultural traditions but so far little energy is expended in understanding these controversies in all their complexity and the critical role religion plays in them this is the first book with multidisciplinary perspectives on religion and homosexuality in africa it presents case studies from across the continent from egypt to zimbabwe and from senegal to kenya and covers religious traditions such as islam christianity and rastafarianism the contributors explore the role of religion in the politicisation of homosexuality investigate local and global mobilisations of power critically examine dominant religious discourses and highlight the emergence of counter discourses hence they reveal the crucial yet ambivalent public role of religion and sexuality beauvoir's The Second Sex and considerably more sound in its conclusion. He is an eloquent and practised writer. The independent UK when John desires Mary or Mary desires John: what does either of them want? What is meant by innocence, passion, love and arousal, desire, perversion and shame? These are just a few of the questions Roger Scruton addresses in this thought-provoking intellectual adventure beginning from purely philosophical premises and ranging over human life, art and institutions. He surveys the entire field of sexuality equally dissatisfied with puritanism and permissiveness. He argues for a radical break with recent theories upholding traditional morality, though in terms that may shock many of its practitioners. His argument gravitates to that which is candid, serene and consoling in the experience of sexual love.

The Emergence of Sexuality

This thought-provoking book, first published in 1991, examines sexual politics in a world which is being radically changed by the challenges of feminism. Seidler explores how men have responded to feminism and the contradictory feelings men have towards dominant forms of masculinity. Seidler's stimulating and original analysis of social and political theory connects personally to everyday issues in people's lives. It reflects the growing importance of sexual and personal politics within contemporary politics and culture and demonstrates clearly the challenge that feminism brings to our inherited forms of morality, politics and sexuality.

few of us have been spared the agonies of intimate relationships they come in many shapes loving a man or a woman who will not commit to us being heartbroken when we re abandoned by a lover engaging in sisyphian internet searches coming back lonely from bars parties or blind dates feeling bored in a relationship that is so much less than we had envisaged these are only some of the ways in which the search for love is a difficult and often painful experience despite the widespread and almost collective character of these experiences our culture insists they are the result of faulty or insufficiently mature psyches for many the freudian idea that the family designs the pattern of an individual s erotic career has been the main explanation for why and how we fail to find or sustain love psychoanalysis and popular psychology have succeeded spectacularly in convincing us that individuals bear responsibility for the misery of their romantic and erotic lives the purpose of this book is to change our way of thinking about what is wrong in modern relationships the problem is not dysfunctional childhoods or insufficiently self aware psyches but rather the institutional forces shaping how we love the argument of this book is that the modern romantic experience is shaped by a fundamental transformation in the ecology and architecture of romantic choice the samples from which men and women choose a partner the modes of evaluating prospective partners the very importance of choice and autonomy and what people imagine to be the spectrum of their choices all these aspects of choice have transformed the very core of the will how we want a partner the sense of worth bestowed by relationships and the organization of desire this book does to love what marx did to commodities it shows that it is shaped by social relations and institutions and that it circulates in a marketplace of unequal actors
