The Merging of Knowledge

this book relates the success of a seemingly impossible challenge to have a group of academics and people living in persistent poverty conduct research together what conditions can the knowledge drawn from poverty cross with academic rigor what type of knowledge does this collaboration result in this is what the merging of knowledge presents in terms of the processes of the fourth world university program and the result of its five groups of work history family knowledge work and human activity and citizenship the results featured in this book can be appreciated on many levels at the level of content this unique collaboration offers knowledge from the very poor regarding their lives that is neglected or misunderstood in fields as varied as history family sociology work sociology and political science this voice of the voiceless is brought to the book by collaborative writing and is presented with the academics methodological and epistemological contribution at the level of gathering and understanding the information collected the very poor are often given the role as witnesses of poverty in interviews here as researchers they contribute to rigorously examined content that illuminates their situations in the working class poverty education and alternative voices ian gilbert unites educators from across the uk and further afield to call on all those working in schools to adopt a more enlightened and empathetic approach to supporting children in challenging circumstances one of the most intractable problems in modern education is how to close the widening gap in attainment between the haves and the have nots unfortunately successive governments both in the uk and abroad have gone about solving it the wrong way independent thinking founder ian gilbert s increasing frustration with educational policies that favour no excuses and compliance and that ignore the broader issues of poverty and inequality is shared by many others across the sphere of education and this widespread disaffection has led to the assembly of a diverse cast of teachers school leaders academics and poets who unite in this book to challenge the status quo their thought provoking commentary ideas and impassioned anecdotal insights are presented in the form of essays think pieces and poems that draw together a wealth of research on the issue and probe and discredit the current view on what is best for children from poorer socio economic backgrounds exploring themes such as inclusion aspiration pedagogy and opportunity the contributions collectively lift the veil of feigned equality of opportunity for all to reveal the bigger picture of poverty and to articulate the hidden truth that there is always another way this book is not about giving you all the answers however the contributors are not telling teachers or schools leaders how to run their schools their classroom or their relationships the field is too massive too complex too open to debate and to discussion to propose off the shelf solutions furthermore the research referred to in this book is not presented in order to tell educators what to think but rather to inform their own thinking and to challenge some of the dominant narratives about educating the feckless poor this book is about helping educators to ask the right questions and its starting question is quite simple how can we approach the education of young people from disadvantaged backgrounds in a way that actually makes a difference for all concerned written for policy makers and activists as well as school leaders and educators the working class is both a timely survey of the impact of current policies and an invaluable source of practical advice on what can be done to better support disadvantaged children in the school system edited by ian gilbert with contributions from nina jackson tim taylor dr steven watson rhythmic mike dr ceri brown dr brian male julia hancock paul dix chris kilkeny daryn egan simon paul bateson sarah pavey dr matthew mcfall jamie thrasivoulou hywel roberts dr kevin ming leah stewart real david cameron sir al aynsley green shona crichton floyd woodrow jonathan lear dr debra kidd will ryan andrew morrish phil beadle jaz ampaw farr darren chetty sameena choudry tait coles professor terry wrigley brian walton dave whitaker gill kelly roy leighton jane hewitt jarlath o brien crista hazell louise riley mark creasy martin illingworth ian loynd david rogers professor mick waters and professor paul clarke and discussion around evaluating academic research and academics in the social sciences from measures of so called quality impact or excellence to the capabilities of academics for us the conceptualization and evaluation of academic research is a question about what academics have reasons to value and about their ability to achieve valuable beings and doings it is also about determining what might constitute academic poverty and what academics are required to do in order to avoid that poverty relating our analysis to debates around universities in particular about quasi market pressures we identify the possibility of basic capabilities in academic research namely the capabilities that are necessary to fulfill basic academic needs our proposition is that there is academic poverty when an academic researcher is not capable of fulfilling basic academic needs such as adhering to standards of coherence robustness and rigour searching for and disseminating the spirit of the truth moreover if the academic has the capabilities to fulfill those basic academic needs and yet chooses not to do so she renders herself in a state akin to academic poverty since growing up i was taught in school that i must have academic education to eradicate poverty and that to be successful in life you must be well educated this kind of belief system is what children in our school system is raised to believe and 99 of those who graduate from high school or university always end up as an employee as an employee your life style becomes so busy you cannot find time to be with yourself to have some quality time to think for yourself it is only when you isolate yourself and get into nature where it s quiet and lonely you can meditate and think with clarity when this takes place if you want to change your reality or your state of poverty the first step would be to discover the law of mentalism and put your skills or talents to work by using the law of action then apply faith which is believing in your invisible self so that you can make or create your visible reality by being faithful to the unseen
