Academic Posters 2016 this volume presents a cross disciplinary analysis of academic poster presentations taking into consideration the text and visuals that posters display depending on the discipline within which they are created as the academic poster is a multimodal genre different modal aspects have been taken into consideration when analysing it a fact that has somehow complicated the genre analysis conducted but has also stimulated the research work involved and in the end provided interesting results the analysis carried out here has highlighted significant cross disciplinary differences in terms of word count portrait landscape orientation and layout of posters as well as discipline and subdiscipline specific patterns for what concerns the use of textual interactive and interactional metadiscourse resources and visual interactive resources the investigation has revealed what textual and visual metadiscourse resources are employed where and why and as a consequence what textual and visual metadiscourse strategies should be adopted by poster authors depending on the practices and expectations of their academic community

Multimodal Writing of University Students 2021 abstract after having been marginalized for a long time as a second class genre or the poor country cousin of papers swales feak 2000 academic posters have recently received remarkable attention as a special multimodal genre that is indispensable for the membership of the academic community in line with the currently growing interest in multimodal writing the present study seeks to contribute to the limited body of knowledge on academic posters in two ways first by investigating the textual and visual communicative strategies employed by novice multimodal writers to facilitate the comprehension of their multimodal texts and guide readers through their discourse and second by exploring the perceptions of those young multimodal writers towards that special genre to accomplish the first objective a corpus of 100 academic posters gathered from freshmen university students enrolled in a second language research writing course was compiled and analyzed textually and visually drawing mainly on the framework of d angelo 2016a that distinguishes between interactive and interactional resources to fulfill the second objective a questionnaire was filled out by 66 students and four interviews were carried out both quantitative and qualitative methods were used in the analysis descriptive statistics was employed in the multimodal analysis of the posters as well as the analysis of the questionnaire responses and a qualitative thematic analysis was conducted to interpret the responses of the interviewees the quantitative textual and visual analysis revealed a clear dominance of the interactive resources and to some extent a lack of making the best use of all the available visual resources the analysis of the self reported data unveiled that young multimodal writers hold quite positive perceptions towards the academic poster as a multimodal genre further they tended to decode the interrelation between textual and visual resources as an illustrative or code mixing relationship where both text and visuals complement each other to communicate the intended meaning the study has pedagogical implications relevant to introducing novice multimodal writers to the available semiotic resources
